ABOUT MICHELLE

From a Turkey farm in rural NSW to a successful Certified Professional Speaker (CSP), Accredited Trainer, author and podcast host, Michelle's learned experiences, deep understanding of what it takes to succeed, and unique skill set have equipped her to become a dynamic presenter and engaging storyteller. She has been featured in top publications such as CEO Magazine and The Daily Telegraph, has provided expert opinions for Nova 96.9 Sydney and KIIS 1065 Sydney, and presented at global events across multiple industries. After thirty years in business, Michelle is just as passionate about the customer experience as she has ever been and is excited to showcase her expertise and share her stories at your next event.

TRANSFORMING HOSPITALITY WITH PASSION, EXPERTISE, AND OOPS!

Michelle lives and breathes customer service, mystery shopping and team motivation. As a leading customer experience expert in the Registered Club industry, Michelle is a “must-have” for any hospitality venue looking to build a profitable business through human connection, create a positive workplace culture, effectively lead a multigenerational team and provide an exceptional customer service experience for their guests.

Michelle’s passion for workplace training and the customer experience was sparked after a particularly challenging job interview in her 30’s. Determined to provide for a young family on her own terms, Michelle created her own company, Optimum Operating Procedures and Services (OOPS). She put years into cold calls, door-to-door sales pitches and impromptu training sessions - until a chance meeting with a friend led Michelle to train her first frontline team in a Registered Club. After seeing the impact her words and experiences had on the team members in that room, Michelle knew she had found her calling. Thirty years on, OOPS is one of Australia’s most respected training and research companies and serves to empower frontline and leadership teams throughout the Registered Club and broader hospitality industry.
